

Invoice Capture - User Guide

A short guide for reviewers: how to check, correct, code and approve invoices.

What the software does

It reads each incoming supplier invoice and proposes the values it found. You confirm or correct them, choose which project each line belongs to, and approve. Approved invoices are sent on to the accounting system automatically.

The software proposes; you decide. Nothing is posted without your approval.

Opening the application

Open the application in your browser (Chrome). You'll land on the review queue - the list of invoices waiting for you.

The review queue

- Each row shows the supplier, the amount, and a status.
- A ! marker means there's something on that invoice to look at.
- Use the search box to find an invoice by supplier, number, or amount.
- Use the tabs to show All, only those To review, or already Verified.
- Click a row to open it.

HISTORY 1

Coding the lines to projects

Below the values is the list of invoice lines. Choose the project each line belongs to from the dropdown. One invoice can be split across several projects - code each line separately.

The lines must add up to the net amount; if they don't, you'll see a warning. The header shows your progress (for example, "2/3 coded").

5. Approve

When everything looks right, press Approve (or Cmd / Ctrl + Enter). The invoice is recorded and sent to the accounting system. You'll see it confirm - "Delivered ..." with a reference number - and back in the queue it's marked done.

History - what was read, changed, and sent on

Every invoice keeps a History: what the software first read, every change you made (and when), the coding, and when it was sent on. Open the History panel at the bottom of the screen to see it.

Tips

- Start with the ! invoices - those are the ones that need attention.
- You rarely need to type much: click the box on the invoice and the value is ready to overwrite.
- If a value looks wrong but its box sits on the right words, it's a quick edit.
If the box is missing (grey), just type the value in.
- Corrections are remembered, so invoices from the same supplier get quicker to process over time.
